MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 1, 1908.

The Efficacy of Prayer. Among my esteemed neighbors there is a family known for the piety of its members and their implicit confidence in the efficacy of prayer. One of the daughters, Miss Kate B., has almost reached the age when she could be referred to ungallantly as an old maid. She is the target for many a good natured quip pertaining to her alleged hopes and endeavors in the direction of matrimony. Not long ago a certain society of young men which had interested itself in a campaign for higher saloon license sent a committee to visit the homes of the district and obtain signatures to a high license petition. When this committee, numbering half a dozen mem bers, ascended the front steps at the B. home my friend's wife was the first to see it through the front window. "Laws, John!" she exclaimed to her

"See all those young men coming to visit us." Mr. B. glanced out of the window, noted the number of the invading force and remarked, with an air of convic-

An Aneodote of Ellsworth.

There was a characteristic incident in the early life of Colonel Ellsworth, the brilliant young lawyer who was one of the first notable victims of the civil war. His struggles to gain a foothold in his profession were attended by many hardships and humiliating privations. Once, finding the man he was looking for on a matter of business in a restaurant, he was invited to partake of the luncheon to which his acquaintance was just sitting down. Ellsworth was ravenously hungry, almost starving, in fact, but he declined courteously, but firmly, asking permission to talk over the business that had brought him thither while the other went on with the meal.

The brave young fellow in telling the story in after years confessed that he suffered positive agony at the sight and smell of the tempting food,
"I could not in honor accept hospitallty I could not reciprocate," was his simple explanation of his refusal. "I might starve, but I could not sponge! -Marion Harland's "Complete Eti-

Starting Early.

Wangles was married recently, and there was a regular hail of rice, confetti and old shoes for good luck as he got into the cab. Moreover, on turning round he was struck above the eye by a friendly shoe with rather a heavy heel.

As the cab immediately drove away no notice was taken of the accident, and, despite the large handkerchief tied by his sobbing bride over his in-jured optic, the blood still flowed down Wangles' face.

When they arrived at their destination the newly created Benedict went out to a doctor to get the bleeding stopped. "How did you come by this, my man?" you see, doctor-aw-I got married this morning, and"- Wangles, when the doctor menced "What! Has she started already?"-

Circumstantial Evidence. "You say you met the defendant or street car and that he had been drinking and gambling," said the attorney for the defense during the cross

"Yes," replied the witness.

"Did you see him gambling?"

"No." "Then how do you know," demanded the attorney, "that the defendant had been drinking and gambling?"

"Well," explained the witness, "h gave the conductor a blue chip for his car fare and told him to keep the change."-Lippincott's Magazine.

Congressional Bell Signals

On the floor of the house the door-keeper has his desk, and it is here that the bells are struck that give notice of the needs of congress. One bell calls for tellers when the house is in committee of the whole; two bells indicate a call for yeas and nays; three declare a recess; with four bells the red light over the door goes out; five bells mean a "call of the house," under which the sergeant at arms is supposed to summarily arrest any member on sight and bring him in, whether on foot or horseback. Any member who is not present at a call of the house is subjected to a severe reprimand. Looking down the corridor, the going out of the red light gives the curious suggestion of the tall end of a passenger train dashing through a tunnel. While the red light burns bright and clear it means that congress is under way, but when the light winks and goes out then the visitors understand that the wheels of legislation have ceased to revolve.-National Magazine.

Countermanded.

A very devout clergyman had just married a couple and, as was his custom, offered a fervent prayer, invoking the divine blessing upon them. they seemed to be worthy folk and not overburdened with this world's goods. he prayed, among other things, for their material prosperity and besought the Lord to greatly increase the man's business, laying much stress on this

In filling out the blanks it became necessary to ask the man his business, and, to the minister's horror, he said, "I keep a saloon."

Lord Kelvin and the Cable. It is perhaps not generally known that the success of the Atlantic cable was due to the calculations and experiments of the late Lord Kelvin, at that time plain William Thomson. He discovered that the current through a long cable would arrive gradually at the receiving end and devised the apparatus which rendered it possible to utilize such a current for making the Morse signals. It was through disregard of his theoretical predictions that the first Atlantic cable, in 1858, was ruined by too powerful currents. Without his mirror galvano iate into visible signals the delicate impulses received through the cable the enterprise would have been a complete fallure.

How to Fill Up Holes In Wood. It sometimes becomes necessary to fill up cracks or dents in fine w work, furniture, floors, etc. The fol-lowing is the best way of doing it: White tissue paper is steeped and perfectly softened in water and by thor-ough kneading with glue transformed into a paste and by means of ochers (earth colors) colored as nearly as pos-sible to the shade of the wood. To the paste calcined magnesia is then added. and it is forced into the cracks or very firmly to the wood and after drying retains its smooth surface.
